Information about the Salary Reduction Agreement

Use of form

You may use this form to: (1) make an initial salary reduction agreement, (2) change the amount of your existing salary reduction contributions, or (3) stop your salary reduction contributions.

General information

---

Your Salary Reduction Agreement is a written, legally binding agreement between you and your employer. It is an agreement whereby you direct your employer to reduce compensation not yet currently available (referred to as “your salary”) by a specific percentage or amount. Your employer then sends this amount to the plan or plans specified in the agreement as a tax-sheltered contribution or an irrevocable Roth after-tax elective deferral contribution to your account in accordance with Section 403(b) of the Internal Revenue Code (“Code”). Your employer may also make contributions to the plan in addition to your contributions.

You may change the percentage or amount of your salary reduction agreement at any time for compensation not yet currently available. Your current Salary Reduction Agreement will continue until you sign a new salary reduction agreement.

For most people, it is wise to designate contributions as a percentage of salary rather than a fixed dollar amount. If your salary increases during the year, your contributions will increase automatically without having to make a new agreement.

You may cancel your Salary Reduction Agreement at any time with respect to compensation not yet currently available.

Limitations on contributions

---

The Internal Revenue Code limits the amount of contributions that you may make each calendar year. Failure to comply with the Code Section 402(g) limit on tax-sheltered contributions and/or Roth elective deferrals may disqualify the tax-favored status of your account. Tax-sheltered contributions or Roth elective deferrals that meet the requirements of Code Section 414(v) are not counted for purposes of determining the Code Section 402(g) limit. Once tax-sheltered contributions and/or Roth elective deferrals in a calendar year reach the Code Section 402(g) limit, subsequent tax-sheltered contributions and/or Roth elective deferrals will be treated as contributions under Code Section 414(v), to the extent the requirements for that section are met. GuideStone Financial Resources can assist you in determining your annual maximum contribution limits. This is particularly important if you coordinate your contributions with your employer’s fiscal budget year or participate in more than one plan.

For more details regarding contribution limits, please contact GuideStone at 1-888-98-GUIDE (1-888-984-8433).
